

Kennedy Appoints Gov. Luther Hodges Commerce Chief

North Carolina Governor
Praised for Achievements

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today chose North Carolina's Gov. Luther Hodges, 62-year-old former textile industrialist, as secretary of commerce.

Kennedy announced his selection for the $25,000-a-year cabinet post with Hodges, a Democrat, standing at his side on the patio of the home of the president-elect's parents on the Atlantic shore.

Kennedy read a statement saying he was making the Hodges appointment with great pleasure. He added:

"At a time when the strength and accelerated growth of the American economy is vital to our own prosperity and to our ability to fulfill our commitments to the cause of world freedom, the department of commerce has become one of the most important agencies of government."

Kennedy noted that the department employs more than 35,000 people and is spending more than a half-billion dollars this year to carry out its functions.

Praises Record

Kennedy then said: "Gov. Hodges will bring to his new position experience in both business and government. During the last four years, under his administration, the state of North Carolina has secured $1 billion in new investment in manufacturing activities, in addition to huge sums for electric utility expansion. Much of this was made possible through Gov. Hodges' background in industry.

"We are fortunate to be able to secure a man of Gov. Hodges' ability and background for this important post."

Hodges' selection came as no surprise, since it had been rumored for weeks that he was in line for the cabinet post.

This was Kennedy's second ap-

Fires Across Nation Claim Lives of 41

5 Southern States
Account for 35 of
Those Who Perished

NEW YORK (AP) — Fires in various parts of the nation took at least 41 lives in a 24-hour period ending Friday. Those who perished included 28 children.

Five southern states accounted for 35 of the victims.

The death count by states: South Carolina, 10; Maryland, 7; Tennessee, 8; Louisiana, 6; Florida, 4; Pennsylvania, 4; Ohio, 2.

A single fire that swept through a La Plata, Md., farm house killed seven persons—a mother and father, their three children, a nephew and a grandchild.

Six Other Persons

Six other persons, five children and a woman caring for them, burned to death in a blaze that destroyed a home at Monroe, La.

A flooded kerosene heater burst into flames in a Miami home, killing two elderly women.

A mother and her niece were asphyxiated by gas as they slept in their home at North Charleston, S. C. In another South Carolina accident a burning soft suffocated three children. At Columbia, also in South Carolina, a 75-year-old woman and her 38-year-old son, who was blind and crippled, died as flames destroyed their small frame home.

The remaining victims also died in home fires.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Fire swept through a century-old landmark in the New Orleans French quarter early today and threatened most of a downtown city block.

Firefighters brought the inferno under control after a two and one-half-hour battle.

Scores of firemen answered the repeated general alarm at Gluck's Restaurant, just one block below Canal Street.

About 75 persons were in the restaurant and had to be evacuated as the flames punched through a wall from an adjoining theater where the fire apparently started.

Fulbright Says Vote Fraud Charges Hurt U. S. Prestige Abroad

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., says that charges of voting irregularities in the presidential election will damage United States prestige.

Fulbright, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, also said last night that he had not discussed any cabinet post with President-elect John F. Kennedy.

He added, "As far as I am concerned I would like to be the senator from Arkansas." He has been mentioned as a possible secretary of state in Kennedy's cabinet.

During a speech to the Arkansas State Federation, Fulbright recalled the presidential campaign, where Republicans predominated, prefer not to be paid issue of American prestige.

He added, "The election is over. Hence, at this point, one man's Everything ought to start pulling together now."

Reds Want U.N. Action For Lumumba's Safety

pro tem. Second row: Robert Morotz, Madison, former Shawano assemblyman, chief clerk; Walter Calvert, Benton, caucus chairman; Paul Alfonsi, Minocqua, assistant floor leader, and Kyle Kenyon, Tomah, caucus secretary. Democrats lost control of the Assembly Nov. 8.

Ex-Premier Put Under Strict Guard

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, facing trial for inciting rebellion in the army and other crimes, was moved out of Leopoldville and put under the guard of Army Chief Joseph Mobutu's most trusted commando troops.

Lumumba was driven to Thysville, 100 miles west of the capital, during the night under a strong escort of soldiers with heavy, jeep-mounted machine guns.

The convoy left the improvised jail at the army's Binza camp near Leopoldville with its slippery prisoner shortly before midnight.

The trip was made less than seven hours after Lumumba, who more than once has evaded arrest or escaped from the hands of political captors, arrived in the Congo capital.

He was flown here yesterday after being captured at Port Francqui, in remote Kasai province.

He arrived here disheveled and manacled and was jeered by on-lookers and cuffed by Congolese soldiers.

Taken to Thysville with him were his three male traveling companions who also were arrested at Port Francqui.

Mobutu placed his prize prisoners in personal charge of Col. Louis Boboso, commander of the Thysville garrison, who at one time was widely mentioned as a

Byrd Defies Clark to Have Him 'Purged'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., today challenged a fellow Senate Democrat to try to have him "purged" as chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Byrd made public a letter to Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., in which he wrote: "You have been quoted in newspapers as saying you are leading a movement in the Senate to deny attendance in Democratic caucuses to any Democratic senator who did not endorse the national Democratic ticket and platform."

"You were further quoted as saying that a Democratic senator holding a Senate committee chairmanship should be purged from his chairmanship if he did not approve proposals in the national Democratic platform which may come before his committee in the form of legislation."

Clark, who is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said in his letter dated and addressed to "my dear Joe":

"My position is simple: I will support those planks in the platform of which I approve, but taken in its entirety I regard the Chester Bowles so-called Democratic platform as being radical, as leading to socialism, and as being fiscally irresponsible."

"Am I to be purged as chairman of the Finance Committee because I refused to support measures which I believe to be dangerous to the republic? I pledged myself to serve faithfully and to the best of my ability."

"I think I would be very wholehearted in supporting your proposal to the floor of the Senate because many fundamental principles are involved."

Byrd wrote that it was his strong desire to give President-elect John F. Kennedy "my full support in all measures he proposes which I believe to be in the best interests of our nation and our people."

Crash Victim Dies of Injuries

Rural Clintonville
Man Hurt When Car
Hit Tree Monday

Edward Breed, 19, route 2, Clintonville, injured in a one-car accident Monday afternoon near Embarrass, died in Appleton Friday morning.

The car he was driving left Waupaca County Trunk C and hit a tree at 110 p.m. Monday about three miles east of Embarrass.

He was transferred from Clintonville to Appleton Thursday night.

A one-car accident near Stoughton, Dane County, Friday took the lives of three persons, raising the state's highway toll for the year to 807 compared with 756 on this day a year ago.

The Dane County dead were identified as Arthur Julsch, 40, Stoughton; Sanford Nordness, 38, and Beatrice Hahn, 45, both of Madison. The car in which they were riding left the road and hit a row of trees.

Frank Kopeck, 64, Milwaukee, was killed Friday night when struck by an automobile as he crossed a street on Milwaukee's south side.

Funeral services for Breed will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Zion Lutheran Church, Embarrass, with burial in Graceland Cemetery, Clintonville. Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters and three brothers.

Victorious Republicans Name Assembly Leaders

Youthful Team Led by Edgerton
Man as Lower Chamber Speaker

MADISON — Victorious Republicans last night put together a youthful but tested team to rule the assembly wing of the state legislature to compete with Democratic Gov. Gaylord Nelson for the respect and affection of the Wisconsin voters.

Majority Republican members of the 1961 assembly in a private caucus here elected four-term Assemblyman David Blanchard of Edgerton as speaker of the state lower chamber of the legislature, gave him this team of assistants:

Robert Morotz, formerly of Shawano and speaker of the assembly in 1957, as chief clerk of the house.

Robert Haase, three-term assemblyman from Marinette, as Republican floorleader.

Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi, Vilas County veteran and himself a speaker of the house in the 1930s, as assistant majority leader.

Assemblyman Willis Hutnik of Sawyer County, a five-term member, as deputy speaker.

Assemblyman Walter Calvert of Benton as chairman of the majority caucus, and Assemblyman Kyle Kenyon of Sparta as secretary.

Norris Kellman of Galesville, who held the office repeatedly as assistant majority leader, was named as secretary of the caucus.

Electoral Puzzle Possible in Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the top legal authorities here disagree strongly over what might happen if no presidential electors should be certified from Illinois this year.

Illinois' Republican Gov. William G. Stratton has said the state's Democratic electors may not be certified by the state electoral board if it receives substantial evidence of fraud in the election. Stratton is chairman of the Republican-controlled board.

Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton is directing a GOP investigation of vote fraud charges in the state.

On the basis of reported totals from Illinois' 102 counties, Democrat John F. Kennedy won the state by 8,849 votes in the Nov. 8 election.

Should Illinois, with 27 electoral votes, fail to make any certification of electors, the question would be:

Does this automatically reduce the size of the electoral college—normally having 537 votes—with a resulting reduction in the number of votes required for a majority?

Won't Be Quoted

You can get emphatic opinion on both sides of the question but government lawyers in the executive branch, where Republicans predominate, prefer not to be quoted directly either way. One summed up the situation like this:

"The constitution and the laws are completely silent on the question of this eventuality. No court has ever passed on the question. Hence, at this point, one man's opinion is as good as another's."

Heritage Series Tells of Agony At Wake Island

It happened 19 years ago this week, but the men who survived the Japanese attack on Wake Island—and the subsequent years in prison camps—will never forget those screaming raids. One of them, John R. Burroughs, was a civilian who went to work immediately on ammunition duty. His eyewitness story of the Americans' 16-day defense, of their magnificence and their agony, is taken from his book on the war years.

This story, another exciting installment of the Best From American Heritage, appears on page A-10 of tonight's Post-Crescent.

Pontiff Hails Meeting Pope John Hopes for Solution Of 'Great Problems' in Religion

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII said today his historic meeting with Dr. Fishman, head of the Roman Catholic Church, was a "great step" toward solving the "great problems" of religion.

The supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church made this comment to cardinals and archbishops with whom he participated in preparatory services for the Christmas season.

At the end of the services, the Pope told the prelates of his 65-year-old archbishop, said he considered the meeting historic, and told newsmen "good examples are sometimes followed."

He observed cautiously, however, that he did not know what the results would be. In a sermon, he said, "Christian unity necessarily means."

"Of course," the Pope said, "reunion with the Church of Rome is not the end of the road. There are reasons for the archbishop's caution because 79-year-old Pope John repeatedly speaks during four centuries of his hopes that 'separated'"]

Good Fishing Seen For Winnebago

Small Sand Pike and Walleyes Will Produce Most Action for Ice Anglers, Department Says

OSHKOSH — Lake Winnebago ice fishermen can expect another excellent angling year provided they can accept an overabundance of small walleyes and sand pike.

This is the estimate of fisheries division officials here who are looking to winter angling prospects.

The official forecast is this: "Good winter fishing for 13 to 16-inch sand pike plus catches of large walleyes, perch and white bass if you can find a place to jig or tip-up fish without small walleyes and white bass spoiling the fun."

Dick Harris, fisheries supervisor, said tip-up fishermen are going to be bothered by small white bass and walleyes stealing their minnows. The big lake, evidently, contains another huge population of small walleyes and white bass.

Jig Fishing Jugging as a form of fishing may again increase in popularity as it did last winter, Harris said. Jig fishermen were among the most successful of all anglers on the lake.

Anglers who used jigs on the Wolf river just prior to ice-out time last spring clicked for good catches of early up-running walleyes.

"Obviously," Harris said, "we can't predict with certainty what the success level of fishing on the big lake will be because weather, access and location on 138,000 acres of water always plays a major role."

To anglers interested in analyzing the drastic changes in fishing success, the biology research figures for 1959 in comparison with 1960 will be of interest.

In 1959, the lake contained tremendous quantities of 14-17 inch walleyes, along with many 11-13 inch sand pike. Yet, fishing was poor because the lake contained an abundant surplus of natural food—tremendous quantities of minnows, plus small game fish and sheepshead which were small enough to be eaten by the predatory walleye and sand pike. Result — poor fishing in 1959.

Large Walleyes In 1960, on the other hand, while the lake contained about the same numbers of large walleyes and sand pike, it also held a great

The entire Necedah refuge will be open to bow hunters except for the area immediately surrounding the federal headquarters. At Horicon no permits will be reduced the natural food supply necessary and hunters will not be required to check in and out of the two checking stations. Deer may be registered at the Conservation Department office located upstairs in the bank building at Horicon.

Departmental records also fur-

Now that the deer season has been laid to rest it can be noted that only rarely in our times has so little been accomplished by so many.

No one will ever be certain exactly how many hunters joined the chase this November. The figure most often mentioned is 300,000. If accurate and if the total kill reaches 60,000, it means that one out of every five hunters in the woods registered a deer of some kind. Last year the success ratio was something like one in three.

There are many reasons why the kill figure dropped from last year's 105,000. Contributing factors were lack of snow cover, dry conditions in the woods and the comparative restriction of the permit system north of Highway 29. You can bet that these factors, and others, too, will be liberally analyzed in the weeks and months to come.

When they are doing the autopsy on the season just past, somebody, somewhere, should consider the possibility that maybe — just maybe — there weren't as many deer in the bush in the first place as we were given to believe. This possibility was advanced, you may recall, prior to the opening of the season by a number of sportsmen and outdoors organizations and was duly recorded in this column.

Sure it was tough hunting. The woods were so dry you couldn't wiggle an ear without making the brush snap. It was hard to see, too, without snow cover. And it was warm — warm enough, perhaps, that some hunters didn't move around much.

But you can't ignore the almost universal report from hunters in every section of the state that they saw fewer deer than in any recent year. And I think it's reasonable to assume that not all of the men who went after a deer this year spent all nine days standing along a highway or on a fire lane. Most of them were in the bush hunting and hunting hard.

In the last two years Wisconsin hunters killed over 200,000 deer. A substantial percentage of that number would be what is considered prime breeding stock. Isn't it possible, therefore, that this heavy harvest might be beginning to show? Isn't it possible that the Conservation Department might have been wrong in its estimation that the state's deer population was as high as it has ever been?

The department employs men whose business it is to know the condition and number of the state's deer herd. I know some of these men personally. They are honest and sincere. They are also human and, as such, capable of error—even as you and I.

From my own observations and from those of many hunters with whom I've talked, I'd say Wisconsin's deer population is down—down, perhaps, more than we think. And, in my opinion at least, this was the major factor behind the drastic drop in the deer kill this year.

—000—

Robert Culligan, of 615 S. Locust St., writes to Both Barrels concerning our pre-deer season discussion of the party permit system. Mr. Culligan had some kind words to say about the column and suggests that hunters who feel strongly about the permit system write their representatives in the legislature.

Both Barrels, incidentally, will have more to say concerning party permits in upcoming weeks. In the meantime, we welcome letters from readers who have something to say on that topic or any other subject relating to the outdoors. All I ask is that you sign your names and addresses.

77,000 Persons Made Use of Calumet Park

Boating, Camping Facilities Get Heavy Attention

CHILTON—An estimated 77,000 persons made use of Calumet County Park's vastly improved facilities during the past year, Park Commission Secretary Orrin Meyer says.

Park attendance increased 54 per cent over last year when it was estimated that some 50,000 persons used the park.

Twenty separate improvement and equipment replacement projects are carried out during the year at a total cost of $15,399. This includes the salary of park caretaker, Lothar Funk, and mileage and per diem of park commissioners.

Improvements included establishment of six new camp sites, surfacing and development of a large parking area at the harbor and launching ramp, ski slope improvements, preparation of three additional miles of bridge path now open, landscaping and widening of harbor road, general landscaping, construction of 24 new picnic tables, plus general building and land maintenance.

Truck Purchased A pick-up truck was purchased for $2,525, a well drilled costing $445, and a power lawn mower purchased for $229.

Park assets for the past year totaled $24,475. County appropriations accounted for $19,105 of that total with $3,549 in cash on hand at the beginning of the report year.

Camping fees, tabulated at the rate of $1 per day with electricity and 50 cents without, brought in $667 during the past summer.

Launching fees, approved by the County Board at its August session and assessed at the harbor ramp, brought in $585. The rate is 50 cents per launching or $3 for a season pass.

Other receipt items include $300 for house rental and $100 each for land and concession rental. Cash on hand Nov. 1 amounted to $9,075.

Meyer pointed out to supervisors that there is an increasing trend to use the park for educational purposes as well as its basic recreational facilities. A total of six conservation schools have been held there by FFA, 4-H and schools of Calumet and surrounding counties.

Used By Scouts In addition, Boy and Girl Scout units used the site for educational encampments.

In line with the park's educational aspects, Funk and park commissioners have developed a map denoting items of scenic and historic interest to aid groups touring the area.

At the present time, the park lies somewhat dormant now that the picnic and camping season is over and the winter sports season not yet underway.

During the winter three ski slopes and three tows on week-ends and several evenings when E. Carroll St. Gerald Harman, Neenah; Donald Casper, Murray Avenue; Ralph Giespie, 839 E. Harding Ave.; and Darrell Lindow, Nelville.

The party killed six bucks during a week of hunting in the Nelville area.

Several Successful Area Hunters pose with their kills during the recent deer-bear season. Many Boaters Use Lapstrake Hulls

'Clinker' Construction Popular For Use Under Rough Conditions

BY JOHN BOHANNAN

More than 1900 years ago the Vikings were building lapstrake hulls and using them for long thought that the clinker-built boat voyages in the North Sea and Atlantic ocean.

Today, this type of construction, also known as "clinker," is still with us. It's particularly popular in outdoor hulls for use in rough water as well as in the larger inboard sea skiffs.

The strakes overlap each other from sheer to keel much in the manner of clapboard house siding. The laps are caulked in larger craft, and the planks are fastened to each other at close intervals and to closely-spaced steam-bent white oak frames.

Latex Compound Some modern boat builders use a latex compound instead of the traditional caulking material. This seems to have an advantage in that it has a tendency to dry out.

Now fiberglass hulls are appearing with molded lapstrakes. What interests most persons is the action of a lapstrake hull in the water. Although some designers were building lapstrake hulls and using them for long thought that the clinker-built boat voyages in the North Sea and Atlantic ocean.

When a lapstrake hull is driven into a wave at good speed, the laps control the solid water, mixing it with air to provide a soft cushion, channeling it in a fore-and-aft direction. Solid spray is flattened into foam.

Wooden Hull A clinker-built wooden hull is strong because the planks are fastened to each other, binding the hull together more firmly. On the other hand, if a leak develops sometimes it is hard to locate and the problem of caulking is not nearly as simple as that of carvel smooth-planked construction, in which the seams can be cleaned out, painted and re-caulked without disturbing the planking.

Returning to the asset side, a well-caulked lapstrake boat doesn't depend so much on the swelling of the wood to make it watertight. It can be kept out of the water for long intervals without leaking when first launched.

That's why clinker hulls have been used so much for wooden lifeboats and tenders. The fiberglass lapstrake, if well-designed and built, gives the soft-riding action of its wooden counterpart, needs little attention or upkeep and should give years of leak-free service. The lap effect also strengthens the hull.

State Men Will Speak at Rally

Game Conference Opens Monday in Canadian City

Three Wisconsin Conservation Department employees and a University of Wisconsin professor will be among those presenting papers at the Midwest Fish and Wildlife Conference Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at Toronto, Ontario, it was announced today.

Stanley G. DeBoer, game supervisor at Black River Falls, will report on "The Productivity of Big Game Ranges in the Midwest"; Thomas L. Wirth, Madison, head of warm water research, will speak on "Angler Exploitation of Estimated Fish Populations in Wisconsin Lakes"; Dan O. Tramer, Madison, Conservation Department pathologist, give a paper on "Leptospirosis in Wisconsin Deer"; and Professor R. P. Hanson, Madison, of the University of Wisconsin Department of Veterinary Science will discuss "Wild Animal Reservoirs and Epidemiology."

General subject matter to be covered at the conference includes comparative productivity of land and water in the Midwest, dynamics of fish populations in small waters, species problems in waterfowl management, dollar value of fish and wildlife, wildlife and fish diseases and fish toxicants in fishery management.

Youths Fined For Shooting At Buildings

Blasting public property with gunshots turned out to be an expensive form of recreation for a young Milwaukee man and four irresponsible juvenile friends, who blazed away at farm buildings in the Kettle Moraine state forest recently.

The Wisconsin Conservation Department received a check for $118.62 to pay for firearm damages to a Department building in the town of Kewaskum in Washington County. Another check for $35.53 was paid to a nearby farmer whose property was also shot up.

James J. Junkait, 21, of Milwaukee, was ordered to foot the bill when he appeared in Washington County Court at West Bend before Judge R. J. Stoltz. Junkait pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal damage to state and private property. He was placed on probation for one year and ordered to post a $200 bond.

His four juvenile accomplices appeared in Milwaukee County Children's Court where they were ordered to share the damage costs.

The arrest in the case was made by Conservation Warden R. J. Lake, West Bend.

785 Boating Law Violations Since Rule Went on Books

Boating law violations through certificate—24 failure to display Nov. 7 totaled 785 the Wisconsin Conservation Department reported today after seven months of operation under the new law.

Arrests were most common for failure to display a certificate and for failure to comply with a motorboat while on the most elementary safety rule of the statute—9 each operating on the books—operating without a prohibited area, operating in life preservers. These accounted a prohibited area and creating a hazardous wake—7 each permit.

Chief Warden George Hadland told an unregistered boat to be parked. Wisconsin residents for operation and display no more than their quick acceptance of the new numbers on a boat—each rule—law.

Other important causes for arrests on property—3, overboarded rest included failure to register a boat and to report a boat, which accounted for 67 arrests—2 each and a lower 24 cases, operation without proper operator to operate an outboard—25, and the most frequent stern towed boat and an outboard violation, operating in a careless manner—47, and an outboard on a boat in Here is a run-down on the reported violations and their numbers:

Free College?

The proposal, again brought up by the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education, to aim at eventual free tuition at the universities and state colleges is not only delving into "never-never land," as one regent said, but is based on impractical and dubious premises. Just because free elementary and secondary education is now thought to be every American child's birthright, it does not follow that the levels must constantly be raised.

In the practical sense, the proposal is out of line with the facts at this time when the state is scrambling to find enough money for existing institutions and burgeoning enrollments. Students now pay something more than 20 per cent of the operating costs of their education in the state institutions. This percentage has risen over the last 40 years but so has the educational opportunities and the quality of the offerings.

Proponents of free tuition base their arguments on three factors; the need for every qualified student in the race with Russia, the fact that "financial difficulties" often are listed as a reason why able students don't go on to college, and the reluctance of young women, in particular, to borrow money for an education that will be a debt rather than a dowry for the expected husband.

lited might even be the result of already painful tax demands of the various levels of government.

Young couples today on the whole start married lives with debts. But the money has been borrowed for dishwashers, dryers, TV sets and carpeting for the living room. The sense of values here is to blame if there is a reluctance to go into debt for an education. And, is there responsibility in government which encourages the taxpayer to pay for the means of some students to gain the education which will get them higher paying jobs?

The discussion is interesting at this time because New York state is currently reversing the trend toward free higher education. Recommendations by educators who have studied the needs and problems of the state are that the present tuition free program at city colleges be abandoned, but that tuition be refunded to the needy students. Here is the change in emphasis from the right of a free higher education to the matter of requiring those with financial ability to pay directly for part of it. This is basically the aim of income tax programs. Because there are youngsters in colleges today who have no business there, who are wasting the taxpayer's dollar as well as their own time even on a larger scale than in the public high schools, the emphasis should be placed upon payments by students with increased assurances that no qualified, able student need stay home.

We do not intend to minimize the ever-growing expense of a college education. But it is the room and board, rather than tuition and fees, that hurts the most. The trend toward regional colleges helps to alleviate this problem. But until we look upon a college education as something owed to every American youngster simply because he exists, we are a long way from agreeing that all his expenses should be paid by the taxpayer.

The World Calendar Again

Because the first day of 1961 will be Sunday, the proponents of a World Calendar, led by Miss Elisabeth Achelis of New York, are urging upon the public the advantages of the proposal.

There is no intention of bringing this revolutionary change about by Jan. 1, 1961, but it is pointed out that since the World Calendar will start its year on a Sunday it is easier to point to the advantages and show the relationship between the present calendar and the proposed one. It is hoped that adoption may come about before Jan. 1, 1967, which is the next year to begin on Sunday.

The changes are few and quite simple. The 1961 calendar could easily be altered to the requirements of a World Calendar by simply changing seven dates out of the 365 1/4 on the regular calendar. February gets two additional days in the World Calendar, the 29th and the 30th. March loses its 31st day and April is given the 31st date. May and August lose the 31st day. Dec. 31 is changed to Dec. W which means World's Day which is to be a world holiday. Leap Year day, which will account for the one-fourth of a day in each year instead of being Feb. 29, as at present, will be another W or World Holiday to be observed each Leap Year immediately after June 30.

Those few adjustments make the calendar functional. The advantages are quite obvious. We have four equal quarters in the year, two equal half years, and each quarter has its first month beginning on Sunday and its second month on Wednesday and its third month on Friday. There is a regular pattern of months for each quarter of 31 days, 30 days and 30 days. Each quarter has 13 weeks. Every month has exactly 26 week days. Every year is comparable with the other years. Holidays fall on the same day and date.

This is obviously a convenience for people using fiscal years, making tax payments, internal revenue collections or the payment of interest. Planning would be greatly simplified. It would certainly be a great convenience for all persons having to deal with statistics or loans and financing. Each of the 31-day months have five Sundays while each of the 30 day months have four.

There will be some irregularities and some months will have more holidays than others and the World Holidays cannot be celebrated completely by everyone. Someone will be required to keep business going with essential services functioning on W day between June and July every four years and the W day between Dec. 30 and New Year's day each year. But quite obviously the benefits would be much greater than the problems caused by the adoption of this new calendar. It's not something we are going to get very soon but it is something we could have by 1967 if enough people really were interested.

Looking Backward

Plea for Nullification Repeal

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Dec. 1, 1860.

We earnestly hope that the Wisconsin Legislature will promptly repeal the outrageous Nullification Laws which disgrace our statutes.

No candid, thinking supporter of the Republican party regards them as legal or of binding effect. They were framed as a propitiation to the mad spirit of fanatical, maniacal Abolitionism. They do not represent the views of a majority of people in Wisconsin.

They are injurious to our interests and reputation and provoke unfriendly legislation on the part of our Southern States. They ought, therefore, to be repealed.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 30, 1835

A voluntary reduction in commercial electric service rates of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company, which would result in a saving of about $18,000 a year to 3,700 consumers, was announced by R. E. Moody, vice president and general manager.

After seven nights of figuring, the common council adopted a $19 tax rate for 1936, $1.75 per $1,000 more than 1935, and a levy of $89,572, $32,069 more than 1935.

Dr. G. A. Ritchie, Appleton, who was observing his fiftieth anniversary in the practice of medicine that year, was to be fêted at a meeting of the Outagamie County Medical Society.

Walter Kuehl was elected president of the Neenah local branch of the Aid Association for Lutherans.

Dr. H. M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, spoke at the eighth annual meeting of the National Undergraduate Interfraternity Council in conjunction with the annual meeting of the National Interfraternity Conference in New York.

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Dec. 2, 1950

Without waiting for congress to grease the wheels, President Truman pressed the starter on civil defense machinery geared to go in the event of an attack on the United States.

Chinese Reds swarmed forth for an attack on Pyongyang. Allied rear echelon units and refugees streamed south out of the former Korean Communist capital ahead of the new Red wave.

Day 4 of the Appleton was to receive a pair of miniature statues symbolizing achievement in 4-H from the national committee on boys and girls club work.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin Eich were general chairman of the annual holiday dance for members of the Appleton Century Club.

H. B. Mennes and Harley Berger, superintendent of schools and principal of Neenah High School, respectively, were among the state educators who were invited by the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association and the National Association of Manufacturers to attend the NAM sessions in New York City.

Too Many Saucermen On Earth

From The Salt Lake City Desert News

The fourth world congress on Unidentified Flying Saucers, held in Germany, was told that more than 300,000 "beings" from outer space are now living on earth.

Aside from the obvious reaction to this claim, one wonders why on earth (to coin a pun) these "spacemen" came to this particular planet.

They surely couldn't have chosen a more trouble-ridden planet to visit. Things must really be tough in outer space for the saucer-men to come to a planet so torn by wars, strife, and dissension — and with an atomic threat hanging over it.

Furthermore, it was downright inconsiderate for so many saucer-men — 300,000 of them remember — to crowd themselves onto a planet that is running out of room because of its "population explosion." One almost wonders where our visitors managed to find a parking place for their "saucers."

It's only fair to warn the flying saucer convention that at its next world congress it may find itself being picketed — if not by the Air Force, which is highly sceptical of "saucers," then perhaps by men carrying signs reading: "Martians, Go Home!"

The Siege of Wake Island

BY JOHN R. BURROUGHS

On Monday morning, Dec. 8 (Wake Island time), 1941, we reported for work at 7 o'clock as usual. About 8, a clerk came to my desk, greatly excited.

"There's a report coming in on the radio that the Japs have attacked Pearl Harbor!" he exclaimed.

Looking out of the window, I saw the usual working party of Marines who were building machine gun pits on the windward side of Peale Island. (Wake is an atoll composed of three islands:

For the United States forces in the Pacific the first months of World War II were a time of unrelenting disaster. Our scattered garrisons could hope only to delay and hinder the Japanese onslaught. One of the most gallant of these desperate holding actions was the defense of Wake Island in December, 1941. At the time of the Japanese attack, Wake was defended by 450 marines and 1,200 civilians, one a construction worker named John R. Burroughs. Burroughs kept a record of his war experiences, which he has put together in book form. It is from that work that this account is taken.

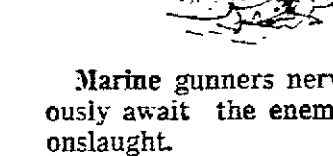

Peale, Wilkes, and the largest, Wake.) For the first time they were in full battle dress.

Just about noon, a loud explosion occurred, followed by a series of similar ones that shook the building. Then for the first time I heard the drone of engines and the rapid staccato of machine gun fire. Someone yelled, "Hit the floor!"

Planes Fly Low

Men were running in all directions seeking what sparse cover there was. All around us, machine gun bullets were kicking up little spurts of dust. The Japanese planes were flying so low that I could plainly see the crewmen.

By now, Pan American's installations, as well as many of the permanent establishments on Peale Island, were roaring infernos. Evidently the Japanese had expended their bomb load on our land-plane runway.

Work parties were being made up. Our immediate task was the decentralization of machine gun ammunition. We shoved the heavy cases aboard a truck, and buried them on the parade ground.

As we crossed the airfield, a sad sight met our eyes. Seven of our fighter planes were broken in two. Three pilots had been killed, and one severely wounded. This loss was the worst possible blow to our defenses.

Reflections About Budgets, Agency Demands

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Twenty or thirty hours of attentive listening during the first week of the executive budget hearings at the capitol left at least one visitor curiously unsatisfied.

The mechanical and routine nature of the proceedings is not a condemnation of any sort for the men conducting these inquiries into the appetites of the state agencies for appropriations for the next two years. Indeed, Gov. Nelson and his staff are perhaps as well briefed as any representatives of the executive branch who have sat in the same chairs during the 30 years or so since the idea of public budget deliberations was written into state statute.

It is perhaps in the nature of the system that these should be casual and perfunctory proceedings at best. How can anyone delve into the manifold responsibilities and duties of a huge regulatory agency such as the industrial commission in a couple of hours, even given high intelligence and stern resolve?

THE EMPHASIS

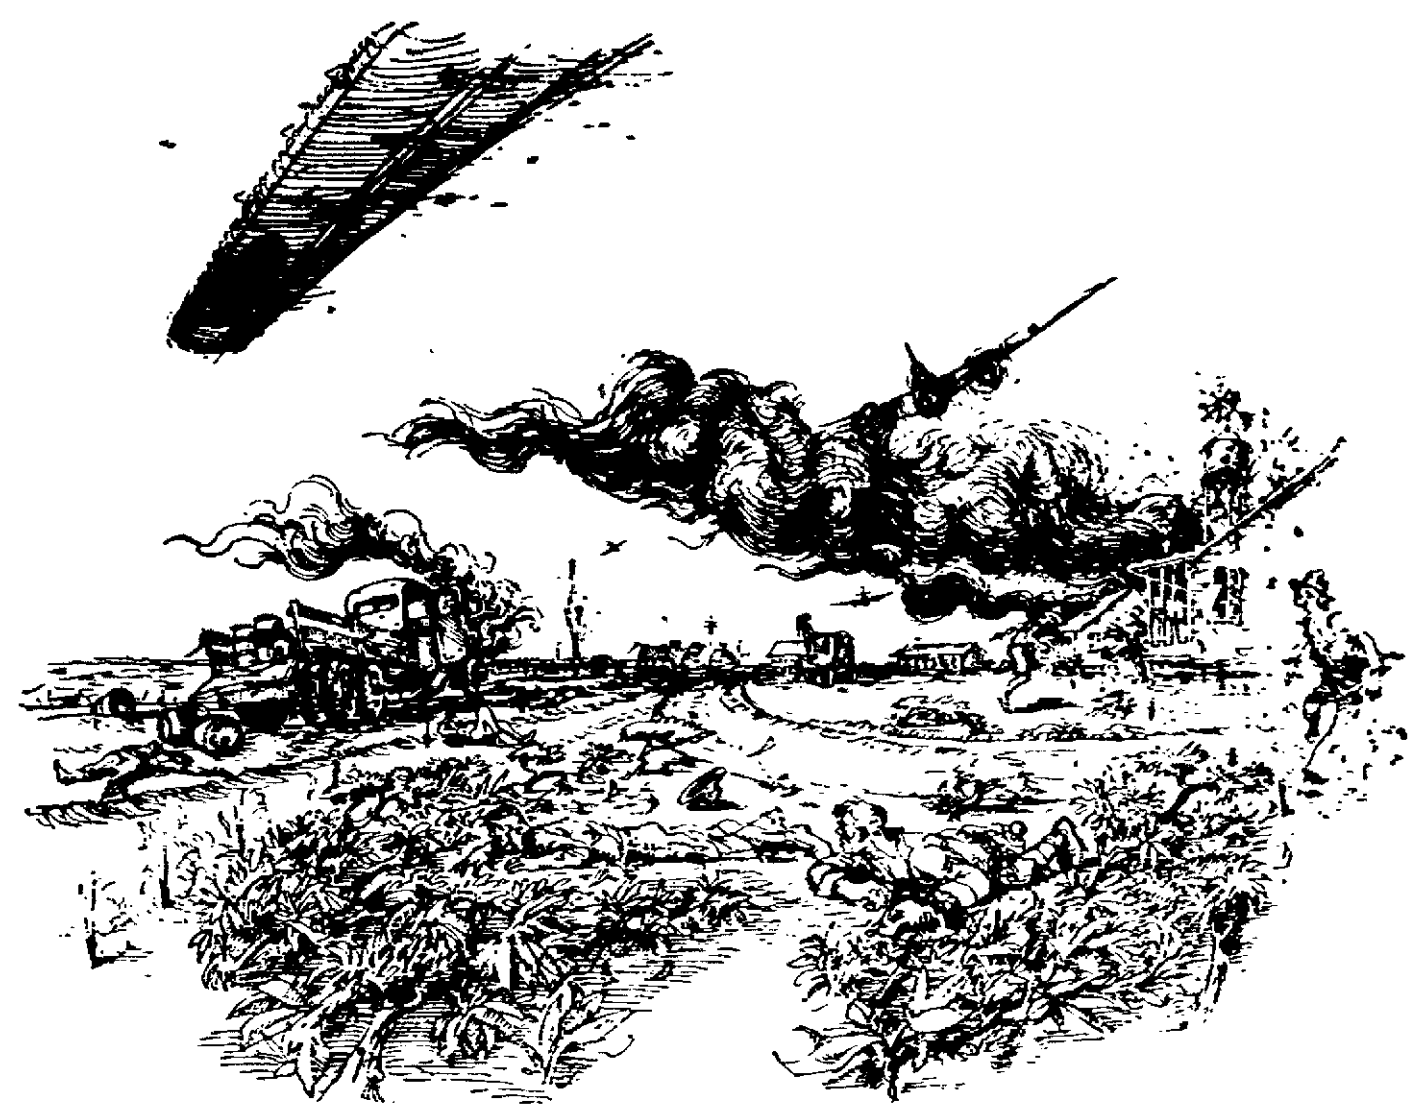

One wonders also what the interested taxpayer might think if he should wander into this hearing room on a typical day and listen for a while.

For the emphasis in the testimony is almost wholly negative and pessimistic.

If the public impressions about the quality and the services of state agencies was dependent wholly upon these witnesses, there might be some alarm about the degeneration of the public establishment. The tired phrases "inadequate resources", "lack of personnel" din into the ears to the point of literal fatigue.

Human nature probably is accountable. The men in these agencies are proud and sensitive, keenly alert to the responsibilities of their work, dedicated to the best possible public achievement.

When they encounter, in a public meeting, the man who has a stout hold on the purse strings, they put their best feet forward and argue as fluently and eloquipped foxhole, we found some 30 service men had been killed or wounded. An undermanned number of contractor's men were casualties. The doctors had operated without rest all afternoon and night.

When the Japanese bombed that morning, they did not have the advantage of a surprise attack. First I heard the rapid staccato of our .50-caliber machine guns, and then the loud "pung-pung-punging" as the AA battery went into action. The enemy flight was passing directly over Peacock Point. The ground shuddered. Rock fragments were falling on the roof of our foxhole like heavy rain.

Soon all of Peale Island and the northwesternmost tip of Wake were blanketed by flame and smoke. Our machine shop and oil and gasoline stores had been wiped out. The Japanese had succeeded in bombing and burning the company hospital, crammed with wounded men.

On the morning of Dec. 10 the raid alarm sounded about 10:45. This time 26 planes came over, the heaviest attack having been reserved for the Marine camp, which was ablaze.

the brush, yelling, "All right, you civilians, break out those shells . . ." I heaved upward, first a shell, then a powder canister.

Score Direct Hit

Our initial target was a light cruiser broadside to us. Methodically, our battery built up to the target until we scored a direct hit. It struck square amidship and right at the water line.

I heard Lieut. Barninger say: "They're drawing off . . ." Then: "Range 17,500." A thrill of enthusiasm ran through me. The Japanese had attacked in considerable strength — at least two cruisers, four or five destroyers, and several auxiliary craft — and we had beaten them off with three batteries of five-inch guns!

Day followed day. There was no telling now when the Japanese air arm would strike. As time wore on, one question loomed in our minds. "Where, in . . . name was the U. S. Navy?" When would our people send reinforcements?

Attack by Sea

Just before dawn on the 11th, I was awakened by shouting outside our foxhole. I caught the words "all civilians down on the guns." Men were running in the direction of Peacock Point. There were ships lying offshore.

Sergeant Poulousky was coming up the trail. "I want you to take charge of the powder magazine," he said. A rectangle of sandbags outlined a trap door at ground level.

"If we go into action pass up two shells — one for each gun. Then two powders — understand?"

We squatted around the magazine talking in low tones about what might be "out there." We were inclined to think that the ships offshore had brought reinforcements. This optimistic trend of thought was shattered abruptly by Lieut. Barninger's steady voice: "There's a red ball on her funnel!"

Poulousky came tearing from

As nearly as we could ascertain, the Japanese were attempting to land all along the lee shores of Wake and Wilkes in motor-driven barges and boats.

the Last Stand

The fighting on Wake was widespread, extending from the small boat channel eastward along the lee shore to within 150 yards of our Peacock Point positions. The best way to tell the story of the melee is to relate

Just how the Japanese flanked our Wake Island positions is not entirely clear. Evidently under cover of darkness they entered the lagoon in rubber boats and secreted themselves in the thick brush.

Hide in Magazine

Throughout the night, nine of us civilians on Peacock Point had lain under the camouflage on top of the trap door to Battery A's powder magazine, squeezed between the sandbags for protection from the bullets streaming overhead. With the first faint glimmer of daylight, enemy planes, coming in low, swooped over our position. Retreat to the dugout was impossible.

There was only one thing to do. Hastily we raised the trap door and the nine of us tumbled into the magazine, where we crouched between the tiered powder canisters and the racks of shells.

Time passed. The sky lightened. The steady drumming of machine guns came from all sides. Fortunately for us unarmed civilians, the Japanese landing parties avoided the strong rip-tides off Peacock Point, and passed 100 yards to the west of our position on their way to the airport.

The sun was up now. A plane dove directly on us, passed close, and miracle of miracles, nothing happened. Then we noticed a significant fall in the firing of the machine guns. I risked a glimpse top side. Overhead a multitude of planes of all types were flying low over the island. Our two naval rifles, stripped of their camouflage, were naked and cold-looking in the early morning sunlight. They were glaring targets, but the Japanese airmen ignored them. I couldn't figure it out.

After the hours of incessant cannon fire, the sudden absolute quiet was awesome. Except for the soft murmur of a quiet sea, Peacock Point was absolutely still.

At long last a man appeared in the clearing in the rear of our camp. Approaching the magazine, he called, "You people can come on up. It's all over. The island's surrendered."

the amazing exploit of Lieut. Bob Hanna.

He was the first to discern the shadowy shapes of the Japanese landing craft silently gliding shoreward. A crew was to have been formed to service the nearby three-inch gun, but they had not arrived. Although he was a machine gun specialist, Hanna got busy.

It was pitch black and everything had to be done by "feel." He proceeded to cut the fuses on several shells, making them as short as possible for a two-second burst.

The first shot went high, but the next took effect. Hanna could not recognize the nature of the target. But momentarily the Japanese turned on a broad spotlight. It was enough. Hanna quickly swung the muzzle of his gun to the left. A second shot found the ship's magazine and she went up.

The show was visible all over the island. By its light Hanna discovered a second ship and succeeded in putting several shots into her.

service or agency. Once established it is imperishable.

All this ought not to be construed as criticism of the men now responsible for the budget preparation in the state government in an extraordinarily difficult time. They are doing the best they can within the traditions of the system and the means available. It also is worthy of note that one of the traditions involved is that of working within goldfish bowl view of the public. Some degree of awareness of the limitations of the system is therefore possible here, and may not be possible in the more backward methods of star chamber budget management.

Your Problems Teenaged Shutter Bug Sees Shenanigans in Dark Room

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school boy, and I need some advice from an expert. I'm very much interested in the camera club at our school. Both boys and girls belong and the meetings are once a week. They have a dark room where the kids are supposed to develop pictures. They go into the room in two's, lock the door and hang a sign on the door that says "Keep Out—Developing." I went to a couple of meetings as a guest and it didn't take long to figure out what was going on. Two fellows or two girls never go in the dark room together—it's always a boy and a girl. These kids are actually peeking on the school premises. What shall I do about it?—Jim wonder where the club advisor is when all this is going on. Surely the club has some adult supervision. If not, it's overdue. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Grandchild number nine is due in a few weeks. I received the expected phone call today—"Of course you'll come and help out while Velma is in the hospital." Velma has three small children and she also has a mother. But her mother is "too nervous" to help out. My other daughters-in-law have mothers, too, but one has headaches, the other can't leave her husband and another "just isn't up to it."

My husband has been very good as a guest and it didn't take long to figure out what was going on. charge every time a new baby comes but we both feel that nine times is taking advantage. You always give sound advice. I'm co-iding to do as you say. — Tired Grandma

Dear Grandma: Say no. Some of these young mothers should be reminded (if they don't know) that their mothers and mothers-in-law are not work horses to be hitched up any old time there's a load to be pulled. In my book they should never be asked to do these favors. If they volunteer, it's another matter. So far as I can tell, Grandma, you didn't volunteer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 16 and planning to be married in a few months. My fiancé and I have discussed many things about our future life together. My fiancé wants a family of four children. I've been rather quiet on this subject because frankly I think there's nothing more attractive looking than a pregnant woman. I don't want to ruin my figure, even temporarily. I want to look like a girl for the rest of my life. I'm looking like a blimp, making me look all over. Can you help me?—Francine

Dear Francine: Science, with all its wondrous miracles has not been able to come up with a substitute for motherhood. If you want babies, you'll have to look pregnant, like everybody else. Nobody says an expectant mother must look like a blimp. Attractive and concealing maternity clothes are available at modest prices. If you're not ready to sacrifice a temporary loss of figure for one of the greatest joys of life, you're not mature enough to be married. Grow up or postpone the marriage till you have a more adult outlook.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1959)

3 Belts for Basic Dress

Instead of buying different dresses for parties, change the look of one simple sheath with three belts. Each is completely different from the other and will give the illusion of three outfits.

Top—Two tone satin sash: Cut 2 pieces of different colors on the bias. Each strip is 8 inches wide and as long as your front waist measurement plus 40 inches. Add 1/2 inch seam allowance. With right sides together, stitch two pieces together along one long side. Stitch other side leaving 3 inch opening cut double and on the fold. The to turn. Stitch 2 short sides. Turn bow piece not shown. is 11" x 7".

Bottom—Satin wrap bow belt: Cut all pieces according to measurements in the diagram. All are long side leaving 3 inch opening cut double and on the fold. The to turn. Stitch 2 short sides. Turn bow piece not shown. is 11" x 7".

Center—Plaid taffeta belt with side drape: Cut one belt piece on you did belt, using interfacing the straight grain. 3 inches wide and as long as your waist measurement plus 2 inches. For side ter of bow tightly, hem loop edges drape, cut 2 pieces, as shown. The 12-1/2 inch side is cut on the straight of grain. Add 1/2 inch seam allowance to all measurements. Using heavy non-woven interfacing, cut 2 belt pieces and 2 drape pieces. Do not add seam allowance.

Turn plaid taffeta edges of all pieces under 1/2 inch and press. Place double layer of interfacing on wrong side of belt and edge stitch together around 4 sides. Do same for each side drape piece. Place dot snappers on right side of one end of belt, using socket side of snapper. Place one snap per 1 1/2 inches in from belt edge

With folded edge facing up make a pleat on right hand end of belt and tack. Make drape section as you did belt, using interfacing same way. Wrap loop around center of bow tightly, hem loop edges together. Tack drape edge to loop seam, tack pleated end of belt to loop. Belt is wrapped around waist twice, ties knotted and tucked under belt.

Family Diary

When Tommy came home the other evening and said he'd lost the $20 I'd given him to pay for the new clothes we'd selected earlier in the week, I hit the ceiling. At other times I might have been more lenient, but near Christmas when there are so many demands for money it seemed like wanton carelessness. I said so—including a good deal more—demanding that he tell me once again just what happened.

Feeling myself to Tommy—trembling lip and fearful eye—I listened as he told how he'd gone to Breck's Store for Men and Boys to pick up the three pairs of school pants we'd had on special order.

Looked At Belts
"The clerk went off to get them," Tommy quavered, "and while he was gone I had my billfold with the money in it down on the counter so I could look at a belt that was lying there. Made out of an alligator," he added, the glint in his eye vanishing as he remembered what happened next.

"Then the man came back with my pants and I reached for my billfold. . . and it wasn't there. I . . . I told the man it was there a minute ago and he said yes, he knew it was because he saw it. Then he started helping me look for it on the floor and under the

Expensive Dinner Eaten in Silence

By Jeannette Griffith

took up where I left off, and from then on until we sat down to dinner it was variations on a theme. "Other people?" I repeated suspiciously. "You mean there were a lot of other people standing around and you had your billfold with the $20 in it down on the counter?" Tommy nodded miserably and I threw up my hands. Don't think my father isn't going to have something to say about this," he told me. In fact, John—who had had a hard day at the office—think he'd wrecked a school building like those hoodlum kids did last week, or knocked down that old man in the park. Tommy may be kind of dumb sometimes, but he's a good kid. And you don't need to tell me to leave the table," he concluded, giving John a glance that mingled both hostility and remorse, "because I'm leaving anyway."

Has Point
There was a moment of electric silence before John spoke, then his voice was quiet. "You've got a point, son. Now sit down and finish your dinner." Though we all tried, it wasn't a very happy meal for any of us. The pot roast that had smelled so delicious summing in my old iron kettle on the top of the stove seemed rapped and, as Sally pointed afterward, even the carrots tasted like orange art gum. Even so, I'm not too sorry things happened the way they did. For while Tommy's carelessness cost us $20, John and I, with Bruce's help, learned a lesson that some parents never learn at all.

Keep Plants Clean and Green

Charles Sherwood, horticulturist at Iowa State University, suggests this quick way to keep house plants looking green and beautiful: Invert plants to immerse their leaves in a solution of lukewarm water, detergent, and vinegar. This removes the surface dust, so popular audiences asked for more and more carols. Frequently this enthusiasm became so great the carol singers, joined by the audience, marched into the streets. Thus, by the 15th century it had become a common practice to sing carols when no plays were being given. In Rumania at Christmas and the New Year it became the custom for processions of the people to march, until ready to serve.

French Fries Stay Hot in Oven

When you finish cooking a batch of french fried potatoes put them in a clean paper bag to absorb the steam. This keeps them hot and crisp for hours.

For Dress Up Occasions at Christmas time and after, the single breasted olive corduroy suit sports a plaid vest which reverses to olive and is just the ticket for the young man of the family. The jacket, lined in matching plaid, features hacking flap pockets with black leather-like trim. Brass buttons are on the jacket and vest.

Our Children Set Aside Day to Take Child Holiday Shopping

BY ANGELO PATRI
Children love to buy Christmas gifts for their parents and others they love. In this, as in so many other adult customs, they lack experience and so need guidance. First the list must be made out. Then a gift for each one suggested. Better offer several so that when one is not available there is an alternative.

The hoarded funds must be divided tentatively, and here the child's voice should be heeded. If he has planned months ago to give Grandfather a cane and a cane is the last thing the old gentleman would endure, say nothing but lead him to list a couple of other things that he might accept happily. If at all possible list something that the child can make. I know a grandmother who has kept the grubby drawing, the more or less neatly stitched and initialed handkerchief, name, date and message on each, that her grandchildren have given her time after time.

Set Aside Day

Set aside a day before the shops are too crowded to take the children shopping. Give them that day, walk the many distances, listen and help without insisting. Accept anything within reason but don't insist upon common sense. Children live in a world more imaginary than actual and it is too bad to force them out of it into the one for which they are not ready.

There will be times when a child forgets about his budget. Have him look at his list again and apply what he knows in arithmetic. If he overspends for his favorite aunt what will he do for the second best one? When he looks longingly at something he would like for himself, take out the list again and let him see that his name is not on it. It might, however, be on somebody else's. Don't forget lunch. Having lunch in a restaurant with mother or Granny or Daddy can be the highlight of his day, something to remember all his life. That's one of the joys of Christmas.

State Costs for Tuberculosis Treatment Dip

Shorter Stays, Fewer Cases of Disease Cause Drop

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A declining incidence of tuberculosis and shorter average stays in hospitals by tuberculosis patients have combined to save treatment costs for the taxpayers of Wisconsin.

The State Department of Health disclosure of a smaller state aid appropriation request for sanatoria operation was the only significant instance of cost reduction discovered by Gov. Gaylord Nelson during his first week of departmental budget hearings in preparation for the new legislature.

The department asked for less money, in spite of the fact that per capita patient costs are increasing in one sanatoria as they are in all other institutions. The state contributes at the rate of $21 a week for county patients in county sanatoria, and pays the entire cost of those patients who do not have legal settlement in any county.

Get Care Under Law
Persons afflicted with tuberculosis are provided sanatorium care without charge under state law.

Total patient weeks of care in the treatment institutions is expected to decline below 40,000 a year during the next two years, or a reduction of more than one third from the level of a few years ago.

Average per capita costs continue to rise, however.

Three years ago the state-wide average cost was computed at about $30 a week.

During the next two years the figure will rise to about $121 and now stands at about $110, according to the budget testimony.

St. Norbert Reports Deficit

College Expands; Income, Expenses Hit Record Highs

St. Norbert College has listed an operating deficit of $1,546 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1960, according to the annual president's report.

The report sets St. Norbert's income for the year at $1,132,614, the highest ever, and record expenses of $1,134,160.

The deficit has been cut $406 from the $2,132 operating deficit of the previous year.

Services Contributed
Included in the income is $187,850 from the contributed services of 45 Norbertine fathers, whose "salaries" are computed on the same basis as lay faculty members and accrediting agencies or dinarily recognize this item as a donation.

St. Norbert's $4,510,834 assets house a new library sufficient to include an endowment fund of take care of an enrollment of 1,539,623 and $3,388,006 in land, 690 students, construction began buildings and equipment.

Department Grows
Curriculum revisions include the adding of art, music, speech and sociology majors to make a total of 19.

The business administration department is to be ready by next September.

The development program calls for expenditures of $1,858,000 in the first three years and over $4 million in 10 years.

See This Authentic "Round the World" Doll Collection

On display in Bauer's new Colony Shoppe are more than 100 dolls dressed in native costume owned by Mary Bauer, daughter of Ross Bauer, who received this valuable doll collection from her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Sturm, Marawa. These dolls were collected by the Sturms in 1939-40 while on a world-wide tour in connection with Mr. Sturm's duties as president of Lions International. The dolls come from approximately 100 different countries in the free world.

ANTIQUE SPINNING WHEEL DEMONSTRATION Sunday Afternoon

Sunday afternoon visitors to Bauer's new Colony Shoppe will be treated with a demonstration of a Daneker Spinning Wheel, an exact reproduction of a typical Colonial American Flax Wheel by Mrs. Emilie Reek, Star Route, Weyauwega. This spinning wheel, on sale at Bauer's, features the same craftsmanship which has gone into the finest spinning wheels of days gone by. Many people have seen and read about antique spinning wheels but have never seen one actually operated. Although professional spinning is the result of years of training, amateurish spinning can be accomplished rather easily.

one neck avoid clogging the opening. A sand clock works like an enigma. Press the necks together, hour glass with which people long and, while someone holds them, ago measured the passing of time. Any boy or girl can make a sand clock out of two bottles. Stand it upright with the empty only a five-minute or three-minute bottle on the bottom. The sand ute sand clock (or even only one will pour slowly from the top bottle to the bottom one. Turn the

The bottles must have very small openings in the necks. Cologne and hand lotion bottles have such openings and are ideal for this purpose. Be sure the bottles are dry inside.

Sift the sand to remove any lumps or gravel. With a funnel made by rolling a small piece of paper into a cone, fill one of the bottles almost full of sand. Then tip it over a water glass (Figure 1) and allow the sand to run out. As it does so time it with a watch or clock. If most of the sand has run out at the end of three minutes, for example, stop the stream and throw away the sand that remains in the bottle. The sand in the glass, which you must now pour back into the bottle, will be "three minutes' worth."

You must now fasten the two bottles together neck to neck as in Figure 2. Put a very small amount of glue on the top of the bottle. The one who has picked up the greatest number when all a local restaurant: T-bone--35 is the winner.

CHICAGO—The Packers are set to play the game of their lives Sunday.

They are just coming out of the most tragic week in Packer history and they are ready to explode their emotions against the Bears.

They were stunned by the death of Jack Vainisi, the Bays' young business manager and chief talent scout, last Sunday. They were grim all week.

The Packers hope to give a great performance in memory of Jack.

TWO RIVERS — Clintonville High School edged Two Rivers, 54-53, in a wild and woolly Mid-Eastern Conference basketball opener Friday night.

Dan Bohman sank a pair of free throws with 2:28 left in the game to turn a 52-51 deficit into a 53-52 lead. The Truckers preserved their lead with a stall, and Bohman added another free throw with 1 minute to go.

Bennett Sinks 5
Two Rivers led, 29-28, after a see-saw first half. Dick Bennett kept the Truckers in the game by sinking five set shots from 15 feet or better in the second quarter. Bennett finished with 14 points—one more than the total garnered by Ken Beggs—to pace the Truckers.

Lee Spiering topped the losers with 14 points.

George Greeley, the Clints' 6-foot-6-center, fouled out with 4:55 remaining. He scored 12 points.

Each team racked up 22 baskets. The Clints made 10 of 19 free throws, while the Raiders sank only nine of 21.

Clintonville won the junior varsity game, 49-43, with Jim Hedtke scoring 11 points.

The Boston Celtics are riding along on a two-game losing streak today after winning nine straight in the National Basketball Association, while the New York Knicks' erobbers were halted after winning four in a row.

Jerry West, Los Angeles rookie, connected for two baskets in the last 30 seconds at Boston to give the Lakers a 120-117 victory over the Celtics Friday night. On Thursday, New York had beaten Boston 116-111, ending the world champions' long winning string and boosting the Knicks to their longest winning streak in more than a year.

The St. Louis Hawks took the cellar-dwelling Knicks in New York, 129-133 Friday night in overtime.

Thanks to Skipper John Jung's "1-point magic," the Manitowoc Ships successfully launched their 1960-1 basketball cruise toward the port of Titleville here Friday.

The Ships, odds-on favorites for the Fox River Valley Conference championship, overcame the bitterest kind of resistance to take a hairline, 57-56 decision from the defending co-champion Appleton Terrors.

After 32 minutes of undiluted excitement in a steaming league opener, the Ships were able to boast of their second 1-point win of the 1960 calendar year at AHS and their third here in the last five seasons. In the 1959-60 campaign, Manty prevailed, 50-49; here, and in 1956-7, the Ships won, 56-55.

Key Play
The key play last night came with less than two minutes to play and the score tied, 50-50. On a jump ball in Terror offensive territory, AHS' Jerry Gendron controlled the tip in the ensuing scuffle, however, the ball went to the Ships.

Al Zipperer took a lead pass and drove for a southpaw lay-up. He connected for his seventh goal of the game and the Ships (with 1:49 left) were ahead to stay.

The poised, experienced visitors made the most of their position of command and stalled effectively. Having to go hard for the ball, the Terrors fouled three times, and the Ships converted five of six free throw attempts to enlarge their lead to 57-52. AHS' Gendron and Dick Rankin each scored from short range in the twice the Ghosts shaved the margin to five points. Kaukauna had trailed by 16 at one juncture in the third stanza.

Ritchie dropped in nine baskets in 10 attempts and he was successful on the final eight shots he tried. The 6-3 senior wound up with 20 points for Menasha and game scoring honors.

Ritchie, Dave Ristau and Tom Stenmetz, all well above the 6-foot mark, gave the Jays marked domination of the boards most of the time over the fighting Ghosts who don't have a 6-footer in their lineup. Despite their disadvantage, the visitors did a pretty fair rebounding job in the final period, especially offensively.

Slow, Methodical
Kaukauna played a slow, methodical game, waiting for an opening for the good shot and frequently drawing Menasha fouls. On the defensive side they used the press.

The slowed-down offense showed up in the shooting totals which recorded Menasha with only 54 shots, one more than its opponent. The Jays connected 20 times for 37.2 accuracy. Kaukauna was successful 15 times for 28.3.

Both clubs were anything but sensational on the free throw MENASHA — Spectacular shooting by Bill Ritchie plus its height advantage helped Menasha sink stubborn Kaukauna 48-40 in the Mid-Eastern Conference opener for both clubs here Friday night. The win was the Jays' fourth straight of the young season.

Now they'd like to win together, but first they must beat the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday to clinch the Eastern Conference crown in the National Football League. The Eagles are 5-point road favorites to score their ninth straight victory.

That would give Shaw as many victories as he totaled in the past two seasons, his first with the Eagles.

His title game shot was as coach of the San Francisco 49ers in the old All America Conference. The AAC didn't have two divisions in 1949—its last year—so Shaw has never coached a conference champion in either league, although he worked five more years after the 49ers came into the NFL in 1950.

The Cleveland Browns beat the 49ers 21-7 in the AAC's final title game, and the same year in the NFL the Eagles took the crown with a 14-0 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

In between his time with the 49ers and Eagles, Shaw spent three years as coach at the Air Force Academy. Now the word is he'll retire after this season and would like to do it following

Papermakers Hit 62 Per Cent From Floor, Bounce Shawano, 72 to 52

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KIMBERLY — The Papermakers opened defense of their Mid-Eastern Conference title with a convincing 72-52 victory over Shawano High here Friday night.

Hitting field goals at a blistering 62 per cent for the game, Kimberly piled up a big margin in the first half and cruised the rest of the way.

Coach Gil Frank's eagles had their best night of the season of the first period and pushed the from the field as they shot only margin to 30-13 early in the second quarter. Their low mark so far, connected on 30. The Papermakers made 10 out of 17 in the first quarter, eight of 14 in the second, six of eight in the third and six of nine in the fourth.

12 Field Goals
Big Tom Rooyackers set the pace for the victors with 12 field goals and six of eight free throws for 30 points. It was the top total but by a Papermaker so far Kimberly now has a 2-2 record overall while Shawano is 0-2.

Kimberly jumped off to a 5-0 lead before Roger Prickette found the range for the Indians. There was no stopping the Papermakers as they hit from way out on long shots and close to the bucket on shorts.

Rooyackers had eight points in the opening period and then following 62 per cent for the game, followed with 10 in the second quarter. Most of his buckets came in the first half and cruised the board he grabbed rebounds off the rest of the way.

Kimberly led 22-10 at the end of the first period and pushed the from the field as they shot only margin to 30-13 early in the second quarter. Their low mark so far, connected on 30. The Papermakers made 10 out of 17 in the first quarter, eight of 14 in the second, six of eight in the third and six of nine in the fourth.

At halftime it was 44-26 as the Indians scored seven points in the last minute to cut into a 23-point Papermaker lead.

2 Field Goals
Both teams had trouble scoring in the third quarter as the Papermakers added 12 points to 10 for the Indians. Kimberly shot only eight times in the period. Shawano failed to record a field

Within 5 Points
The closest Lawrence got in a desperate comeback try was five points (60-55) with about 1:30 remaining. But Coe stalled out the win.

Game Captain Jim Rasmussen led both clubs with 21 points. The only Viking regular who exhibited more than a nodding acquaintance with the basket, "Rass" hit eight baskets in 23 shots including 6-for-10 five in a row in the second half.

Sophomores Steve Davis and Ken Moeller paced balanced Coe scoring with 10 markers apiece. Ten players scored for the visitors.

Hooping a good night's rest sharpened their shooting eyes, the Vikings were to entertain Grinnell at 1:30 this afternoon. The Pioneers lost to Ripon, 68-62 Friday night.

224 Rate
Thirty-two per cent marksmanship in the final 20 minutes brought Lawrence's overall basket-weaving rate up to a non-descript .224. Coe cooled to a .308 in the final segment to finish at .421.

For whatever it's worth, the losers far outshone their guests from the foul line. Coach Don Boya's Vikings made 21 of 30 tries for 70 per cent. Bill Fitch's club swished just 50 per cent (15 for 30).

Lawrence starting guards Jim Dick Emanuel outlived Manty Schulze and Chuck Knocke, to from the field, 25 baskets to 24 shots. Schulze was 0-for-8 in 24 shots. Knocke 2-for-16. They finished with four and eight points, respectively.

Joe Lammers also totaled eight. AHS was perfect from the foul line—hitting six of six. Unfortunately, for the near-capacity shot to open the game and Lam-partisan crowd, the Terrors haders matched it with a close-nit chance to exercise their goal. The visitors added seven free-throw accuracy since the
